Numb. 378.

THE Pennſylvania GAZETTE.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Foreign and Domeſtick.

From February 25. to March 4. 1735,6.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, October 8. N. S.

IT has been a long time ſuſpected, that Cardinal Alberoni has had his Engines at work to bring the Courts of Vienna and Madrid to a Pacification: 'Tis certain, no Man is more capable than his Eminence to conduct a Scheme of this kind, nor does any one know better the true Intereſt of the Houſes of Auſtria and Bourbon, particularly the two Branches of the latter; as for Italy, the real Bone of Contention, (for the Pretences for the preſent War are mere Fallacy) his Eminence knows its Intereſts to a Hair. The Cardinal has therefore drawn up a Project, which he calls A Scheme for a General Pacification in the preſent Conjuncture, and has preſented it to the Powers at War, back'd with all the Rhetorick and Perſuaſion he was capable of. The following is a genuine Abſtract of the ſaid Project.

After having laid open the Importance of the preſent War, and acknowledg'd that the very Foundations of the Liberty and Balance of Power in Europe are ſhaken by the Advantages gain'd by the Allies over the Emperor, his Eminence ſays, that in deſperate Diſtempers you muſt have recourſe to deſperate Remedies, and lays down as a Maxim, that there can be no ſettled Tranquility in Europe, as long as the Houſes of Auſtria and Bourbon are for ever coveting each others Countries; wherefore he pretends, that the Limits of the Empire ought to be fix'd at the Rhine, under the Guarantee of all the Powers of Europe; and that the Emperor endeavours at nothing elſe in his Engagements with Ruſſia and Poland, than to oblige the Turks to repaſs the Helleſpont, and to abandon Europe. To this Effect the Cardinal has Recourſe to the Scheme of the Emperor Charles V. who with the Imperial Diadem, confin'd his Brother to the Hereditary Countries of his Houſe in Germany, and the Kingdoms of Bohemia and Hungary, which were not near ſo conſiderable then as now. The Situation wherein Providence has at preſent thrown things, makes his Eminence think it proper to revive the Syſtem of Charles V. and for that reaſon 'tis neceſſary,

I. That the Emperor aſſure to the eldeſt Archdutcheſs, in giving her to the Duke of Lorrain, all the Countries that Charles V. yielded to his Brother Ferdinand; and to the youngeſt, who ſhall be married to Don Carlos, the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily; ſtipulating, that neither theſe Princeſſes nor their Children, ſhall inherit from each other, and that the Emperor renounce all Pretenſions to Italy.

II. All the States and Territories in Italy ſhall be form'd into an independent Republick, ſuch as is the Germanick Body, and to have a Diet, of which all the Members ſhall depend. No Foreign Prince ſhall poſſeſs any State in Italy, and theſe States ſhall hold only from the Italick Body, whoſe Form of Government ſhall be guaranteed by the contracting Powers. This Republick ſhall enter into an Alliance with the Helvetick Body, to protect it on the Side of the Alps; the King of Sardinia, as Duke of Milan, will naturally defend the Barrier on the Side of France, and the Venetians on the Side of Germany: There ſhall be a ſufficient Garriſon of Swiſs in Mantua, at the Expence of the Italick Body, and the Pope, the King of the two Sicilies, the Republicks of Venice and Genoa, with the Aſſiſtance of the Grand Maſter of Malta, will have always a Fleet capable of defending Italy by Sea.

III. To execute punctually the Article which excludes all Foreigners from poſſeſſing any of the Countries of Italy, the Crown of the two Sicilies ſhall devolve to Don Philip, in caſe his Brother Don Carlos ſhould happen to die without Male Iſſue; and in caſe any Dominion ſhould chance to fall to a Female, the Italick Body ſhall be the Adminiſtrator of the Government, and the Heireſs ſhall not marry any Perſon but whom the Diet ſhall approve; and if any any State ſhould become vacant for want of Heirs, the Diet ſhall give it by a Plurality of Voices to any Perſon who ſhall be worthy of and qualified for the Honour.

IV. Charles V. not having been willing that his Brother Ferdinand ſhould poſſeſs the Netherlands, the ſame Reaſons which urg'd him to that Opinion make it neceſſary at preſent, that it be ſeparated from the Domain allotted to the eldeſt Archdutcheſs, and given to a Prince who ſhall have no other Intereſt or View than to be attach'd to the States General, to take care of their mutual Preſervation. This Prince is the Elector of Bavaria: And it ſhall be made to ſatisfy at the ſame time his Pretenſions upon the Succeſſion to Auſtria. His Highneſs, back'd by the Power of the Empire and Great Britain, ſhall ſecure Bavaria from the Umbrages caus'd by its Neighbourhood to France.

V. The ſame Reaſons which do not permit the Emperor to poſſeſs any thing on the other ſide the Rhine naturally preſent in relation to Lorrain, upon a Preſumption that the Emperor deſigns his Eldeſt Daughter for the Duke and the Imperial Crown: France therefore ſhall have Lorrain, and by this Acquiſition will find herſelf indemnified for the Expences of the War.

By the Execution of this Plan, his Eminence conceives all the ancient Seeds of Quarrels between the Houſes of Auſtria and Bourbon will be entirely eradicated; and that the Balance being equally pois'd all Jealouſy will ſubſide, and each Nation turn itſelf to the Advantage of Commerce and Improvement of Arts: That ſuch Princes as ſhall find themſelves unable to be reſtrain'd within the Circle of Peace, may employ their Arms and their Valour againſt the Enemies of Chriſtendom: That the Effuſion of Blood amongſt each other being ſtopt, numerous Colonies may be ſent into America: And in ſhort, That Swords ſhall be turned into Plough Shares, and Spears into Pruning-Hooks.

It muſt be noted, that his Eminence ſuppoſes the Affairs of Poland ſettled in Favour of Anguſtus; and by giving Lorrain to France, leaves room for King Staniſlaus to be King of Auſtraſia, or to take what other Title he pleaſes.

Dr. Samuel Clark's Mark and Criterion of True Religion and Superſtition, extracted from his Sermons, Volume II. Page 134.

IS Religion and Superſtition differ entirely in their Ground and Foundation, ſo do they likewiſe in their Effects. By their Fruits ye ſhall know them, Matt. vii. 20. Religion which is founded in Truth, always makes Men impartially inquiſitive after Truth, Lovers of Reaſon, meek, gentle, patient, willing to be informed: Superſtition on the contrary, naturally makes Men blind and paſſionate, deſpiters of Reaſon, careleſs in enquiring after Truth: Haſty, Cenſorious, Contentious, and Impatient of Inſtruction. Religion teaches Men to be exactly juſt, equitable and charitable towards all Men: Superſtition, on the contrary, frequently puts Men upon undervaluing the eternal Rules of Morality, and upon preferring the Intereſt of particular Sects and Parties, the Prevalency of ſome uncertain Opinions, and the Practice of ſome needleſs Ceremonies, before the unalterable Precepts of the everlaſting Law and the everlaſting Goſpel. Laſtly, True Religion, the Religion of Nature in general, and the Religion of Chriſt in particular, by ſecuring the Belief of a future Judgment, tends greatly to promote the Happineſs of Nations, and good of Governments, in obliging the Conſciences of Men to real Fidelity, Juſtice, and the ſincere Practice of every Virtue, which the very beſt beſt human Laws can but imperfectly ſecure, by compelling merely the External Action: But Superſtition, on the contrary, frequently produces Wars, and Tumults, and Perſecutions, and Tyrannies without End; there being nothing ſo wicked, which Men of Superſtitious Principles will not think pious and neceſſary, and which Men of No Principles will not, upon Occaſion, bring themſelves to ſubmit to.

Note, Some Thouſands of the above have been printed at London in Half Sheets, at the Charge of a few Gentlemen, and given away.

Mr. Franklin,

BY inſerting the following Remarks upon the Tranſlation of a French Book, entituled, Nouveau Traité de la Civilité, &c. A New Treatiſe of Civility; lately publiſhed, and much decry'd by ſome People, you will do a Piece of Juſtice not only to the French Author, who is not here to explain his own Meaning, but alſo to the Tranſlator, who is wrongfully charg'd with having tranſlated a ſenſeleſs Book, whereas in Fact he has only made a ſenſeleſs Tranſlation.

Tranſlation, Page 2. For we are to breath into ſomething more ſolid.
The Original is, Nous devons aſpirer à quelque choſe de plus ſolide.
True Meaning. We ought to aim at (or aſpire after) ſomething more ſolid.

Tranſ. P. 24. Neither is it Policy, &c.
Orig. Il n'eſt auſſi nullement de la politeſſe, &c.
True Meaning. Neither is it polite, &c.
Our Tranſlator, it ſeems, makes no Difference between Politeneſs and Politicks.

Tranſ. P. 93. Wait, Sir, till you are let in.
Orig. Hé quoy, Monſieur, attendre que l'on vous faſſe entrer?
True Meaning. What, Sir, do you expect that I ſhould deſire you to walk in?

Tranſ.

Transl. P. 97. For coming from Painting, I do not know my self.

Orig. Puisque venant de le peindre, je ne le connois pas moy-même.

True Meaning. Since, tho' I have painted it, I do not understand it.

Transl. P. 122. If you are helped to any thing whereon are Ashes, which happens sometimes from Turff.

Orig. Si vous serviez quelque chose où il y eut de la cendre, comme quelque fois sur des Truffes, &c.

Truffes, in French signifies a kind of Root, which are called in English Truffles, and are commonly roasted in hot Ashes for Eating; But our Translator has render'd it Turff, which is known to be quite another thing.

Transl. P. 140. If a Person of Quality come to visit us, and we are advertised of it, we ought to go and meet him in a Coach.

Orig. S'il arrive qu'une personne qualifiée nous fasse visite, & que nous en soyons avertis, il faut l'aller recevoir au carosse, ou le plus loin que nous pourrons.

True Meaning. If a Person of Quality come to visit us, and we are inform'd of it, we ought to go and receive him at his Coach, &c.

Our Translator did not consider, that if the Person visited should happen to be in his Chamber, when Visitors come to his Door, it would be necessary to have his Coach and Horses with him to come down Stairs in.

Transl. P. 202. For first, Elevation is as it were expressing the Elevation of a Sol Fish; the Elevation of a Cardinal to be Pope, &c.

Orig. Car premierement, élevation. se prend pour exprimer l'elevation du Pole; l'élevation d'un Cardinal au Pontificat, &c.

True Meaning. For first, the Word Elevation is used to express the Elevation of the Pole, &c.

What our Translator means by the Elevation of a Solfish, or what Dictionary gives him Sol-Fish as English for the Word Pole, is difficult to imagine.

Orig. Et le sens commun seul nous apprend assez que tous les bons mots ensemble ne valent pas un cuiy.

Transl. P. 202. And common Sense teaches us, that all good Words assembled together are not so valuable as a Friend.

True Meaning. And common Sense sufficiently teaches us, that all the Jests (or Jokes) in the World are not equivalent to a Friend.

The Author in the Original, is blaming those who are so fond of Raillery, that they had rather lose their Friend than their Jest. The Translator it seems did not know the vast Difference there is between dire des bons mots, in French, and giving good Words in English.

Orig. Comme ce que l'on appelle point d'honneur selon le monde.

Transl. P. 250. As those who are called, no Honour as the World goes.

True Meaning. As that which the World calls a Point of Honour.

Those who are called no Honour as the World goes, is not only entirely wide of the Original, but absolute Nonsense in English; and, with the like Instances that might be given from almost every Page, serves but to show, that the Gentleman who perform'd that Translation, has translated out of a Language he did not understand, into one, of which, if possible, he understood less.

I am, Sir,

Your humble Servant,

Z. Z.
